WORKSHOP SERIES 2018

Free One-day Sustainability Film-making Workshops

Registrations are open for the eighth annual series of The Outlook for Someday sustainability film-making workshops.

The free one-day and two-day workshops are taking place throughout New Zealand through Autumn and Winter 2018.

They are open to young people from school years 7 to 13 (age 11 to 18), as well as teachers and youth workers who want to engage with The Outlook for Someday as a vehicle for sustainability film-making.

All participants will make short films and screen them at the end of the workshop.

Each participant will also have an opportunity to develop their own story idea - one that is meaningful to them and which they could then turn into a film as an entry to the Someday Challenge.

Spaces are limited to 25 participants per workshop.

Young people, teachers and youth workers are invited to register for a workshop in their area by using the registration form at:
